WARNING FOR WEAK HITTERS

Connolly Gets His Hits While Griffmen Fail

Georgetown Youngster Is Only Batting Righthand Pitchers, Having Never Been Tried Against Southpaws-Other Gossip of Nationals' Doings.

By LOUIS A. DOUGHER.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, May 23 .-When a rookie player can step into the line-up of a major league team and in his first five games hit for .412, scoring five runs on seven hits, he is doing very passable work. That's what Tommy Connolly, the former Georgetown star, is doing with the Griffmen. Yesterday he took part in his fifth game in the big show. In that time he has been to bat sixteen times, scored five runs and has made seven hits, totaling nine bases. In his sixteen trips to the plate he has fanned but twice, Eddie Cicotte pulling this stunt on the youngster. Every other time he has hit the leather like a veteran.

Connolly plays only when lefthanders do not oppose the Griffmen of the rubber. This may aid him somewhat in establishing this good record, but it begins to look more and more every day to those merely gazing at the scene that Connolly might well be tried against southpaw twirlers. As a college player, Connolly faced southpaws just as he did righthonders. He get his bare, but that was a mechanical error. he did righthanders. He got his hits just the same in both cases. If southpaws alone, there might be good reason for the present arrangement, but the Monaca Marvel is down around the .250 mark. Connolly can tumble down half-way to the bottom and even then be right in dians. In the second frame, Graney was blue as it might have been. on first when Smith tried to sacrifice.

Boehling came in fast and took the bunt on the fly. Turning to throw to first to double up Graney, who had started for second, he found two menthere, Morgan and Gandil. It was simple for Gandil, but he didn't know Morgan was there. So he promptly collided with Morgan, neither of them getting the ball, Graney reaching the bag in safety.

Chicago-Boston Games Causes Big Change in National League.

Important changes occurred yesterday the two major league races. In the National the Chicago Cubs, taking their third straight game from Boston, dis-possessed the Phillies and climbed into first place. It was the first time the Phils have been headed this season. So closely are the first five teams 'r the National bunched, that the Chicago-Boston game, the only one played yes-terday, rain interfering elsewhere, pro-duced far-reaching results: Philadelphia dropped to second place. Boston dropped to fourth, automatically forcing Pittsburgh into third place, and Brook. Lyn became tied with Boston for fourth. Thus the standing of five clubs was affeeted at this late date-five and half weeks after the opening of the season—by a solitary winning. A shake-up also came in the American of New York, which dropped to third

Georgetown Is Downed By Navy in Two Sports

The United States Marine Corps baseball team is today declared winner of the first series in the Government League with eight straight games won and ho defeats. The Marines have taken the measure of all of the other clubs, and in addition have won fourteen games and lost but three during the season.

Tuckerman won the sixteenth hole and Jackson evened up when a fine brassey followed by a perfect approach won him the hole and evened the match. The players drove off to the eighteenth hole, Tuckerman's ball being well up on the green. Jackson's shorter drive was fifty yards away and an approach brought him to within twenty-five feet of the hole. Tuckerman got a four, while Jackson's three landed him the match. Gen. E. M. Discharge of Birmingham and Win of Twelve-Inning Game Puts Cleveland Fans in Fine Fettle-Nationals Come to Life and Get Fourteen Safeties in Opening Conflict.

of life has been given the Indians with the summary discharge of Joe Birmingham, and that twelve-inning victory yesterday is expected to bring out large holiday throng today, especially when Guy Morton, Cleveland's best and most successful twirler, is booked to tackle Walter Johnson. Interest in the Indians has been slowly fading away, but now all Cleveland is discussing the hard hitting and stellar pitching that characterized that first game with the Griffmen. It is expected that fully 15,-000 fans will be on hand to see the two teams in action.

No better ball game was ever witnessed than that first skirmish of 1915 between the Griffmen and the Indians, won by the latter, 7 to 6, in twelve innings. From first to last the combat fairly sizzled with brilliancy. Both teams were on their toes all the time. Great fielding stunts were seen, and hard hitting, the kind that makes the fans stand up and yell, was contributed by both clabs. No, the Griffmen didn't win, but it seems in the books for them to lose, no matter how they turn

Fourteen bingles, at least eleven of them hard drives, were marked up for the Nationals, but they came out of the small end of the horn because of boots and Hank Shanks' lamentable weak-ness. A thrilling batting raily, five base knocks coming in a savage onslaught against the Indians, sent four runs joy-fully across in the sixth and gave the Griffmen the lead. That should have ended the entire affair, but Milan's poor throw on a relay from the fence to McBride allowed the type run to to McBride allowed the tying run to come in, and Ray Morgan's wobbling weakness in the last frame made it pos-sible for the winning tally to be chalked up for Lee Fohl's outfit.

a left-hand hitter cannot do as well aganst a southpaw pitcher as a righthander can. For that heason Tommy Connoly, who had shown great strength against Steen, was yanked when Willie Mitchell, appeared and allowed Hank Shanks to try his luck. Hank fanned twice, and then came up in the twelfth with the bases loaded and no one cone. According to this ancient fetish of base-ball, Connolly would have been helpless, but Shanks would have done something worth while. Well, he poked a puny one back at Mitchell. The twirler tossed out Shaw at the plate, and O'Neill made it a double play on Shanks by a rapid peg to Jackson. All the good work of the first three batsmen went for nothing, but the score was 5 to 1 in favor of the Indians.

Morgan opened the fifth with a single and Ainsmith was hit by a pitched ball. Barbare threw out McBride and Williams, hitting for Boehling, rolled to Jackson, letting Morgan score.

The real fireworks came in the sixth, when, with two down, the Griffmen made four runs. Milan's single was followed by Gandil's triple. Morgan singled and so did Ainsmith, the latter going up when Graney walked all over the rolling ball. McBride's fine double to left center scored two runs, and it remained for Shaw to end this stuff with a breezing exhibition. McBride's solid thumb had driven Steen to the tall timbers. Willie Mitchell taking up the mound task. No runs were scored off the southpaw.

mound task. No runs were scored on the southpaw.

With two down in the seventh Chap-man poled his second triple to the fence in right center. Milan's throw to Mo-Bride went over the captain's head and Chapman came in, colliding with Ain-smith, who tried to block him off unsuccessfully. All hope of winning fled from the Griffmen after their wretched work in the twelfth. Shaw scratched a hit over Chapman's head. Moeller bunted and Turner, Jackson, and Mitchell all went for it, not one getting it, Foster followed them all by bunting to third for a bingle, filling the bases. It was up to Shanks, coming up with the bases loaded and nobody out. With the count two strikes and one ball the handsome left fielder struck at a bad ball, low and on the outside, rolling a weak one back at Mitchell. Shaw perished at the plate and Shanks was doubled up at poor throw on a relay from the fence to McBride allowed the tying run to come in, and Ray Morgan's wobbling weakness in the last frame made it possible for the winning taily to be chalked up for Lee Fohl's outfit.

One of the theories of baseball is that a left-hand hitter cannot do as well against a southpaw pitcher as a right-fourth, getting the runner by a second to more than the fourth, getting the runner by a second to more than the fourth certain the fourth c the fourth, getting the runner by step. But the hard fact is ever prese the Griffmen lost.
